Modern Argentina, the El Dorado of to-day;: With notes on Uruguay and Chile, W. H Koebel

Argentina, Uruguay, and Chile have rendered in connection with this small work the author finds himself confronted by a difficulty. Where so many, out of pure goodwill and interest in their native or adopted land, have spared neither time nor trouble in placing their knowledge at his disposal, the compilation of a full list of the names of those to whom he is under an obligation would be impossible. So far as the city of Buenos Aires is concerned, the writer desires to express his cordial thanks for the assistance received at the hands of his compatriots, and more especially to those numerous members of the Strangers, English, Hurlingham, and Lomas clubs who accompanied him in his explorations of the metropolis and its surroundings. As regards the various Estancieros whose guest he had the pleasure of being, it suffices to say that the famed hospitality of the Camp is indeed worthy of its reputation. He desires to thank in especial the following gentlemen for assistance received in matters dealing with both town and Camp: Messrs. W. A. Gar, F. Sradney, Dutting, A. M. Martinez de Hos, George Keen, Carlos Luro, H. C. Martin, Moss, Luis Meyer, R. Inglis Runciman, Leishman Runciman, Robert Runciman, W. Riddle, F. Crawford Smith, W. Scheibler, Schwind, A. Soley, Thomas (of CarcaraH a), A. P. Treweek, Glyn Williams.
