Every reporter knows the first rule of journalism: never betray your source. But what if your source turns out to be unworthy of your silence? What if it's your source who betrays you? The Messenger is about the unlikely friendship between two men looking to change the world - a repentant jihadist and a journalist. This troubling real-life thriller takes us from their first meeting in a spartan flat in the rough suburbs of Manchester, a bombing in Pakistan, dramatic arrest and Malik's reporting career on the brink of ruin. Six years later, Malik returns to this extraordinary story. He probes where we place our faith - in reams of evidence, in a government we believe is on our side, in a trusted source, in a terrorist who swears he's changed, in a friend who has no one else but you. He asks the uncomfortable questions about why he, as well as the wider media and the nation, came to be so afraid. And he lays bare the deceptions pedalled to us by governments and terrorists alike. This is investigative journalism and storytelling of the highest order.

Johnny Sutton:

As a student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher asked them to go to the library or to make summary for some guide, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's spirit or real their hobby. They just do what the teacher want, like asked to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading seriously. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring and can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this time, many ways to get whatever we wish. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this The Messenger can make you truly feel more interested to read.
