I ENTERED Lorain the lothof October 1770, at Sar Louis, in my way to Metz, taking the road of Boulay. The country is fine, but not well cultivated; this season would not allow me to make the observations I wished upon their corn culture, yet did the trouble seem to indicate pretty good crops. Inclosures there are none, except a few about the villages, and some of them were filled with turneps the crops of which were of small, that I was a little surpris'd on what their cattle could subsist in winter.
